Grievance Issue:

An Oral reminder was issued to a Cable Splicer for insubordination for failing to report to work

Facts of the Case:

The grievant is a Cable Splicer with just over four years of Company Service. The grievant had signed the 212 list and was needed for an emergency work assignment on a Sunday. He was instructed to come to the yard at 1:30 p.m. The grievant stated that he could not be in until 8:30 p.m. because of child care issues. The grievant reported to work at 6:30 p.m. The event was an all hands situation. The night crew had already been at work for 30 hours and needed relief.

The grievant's regular work hours are M-F 7:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Discussion

The Union argued that the grievant has legitimate issues with child care and reported as soon as he was able to get child care. The grievant readily signs the 212 list and he makes himself available for emergency overtime. In this case the employee should not be penalized. He reported as soon as he could report. The Company needs to give more consideration and compassion to employees with child care issues.

Company position is the continuity of service is critical to the customer and the Company. Employees who sign the 212 list are committing to be available for overtime assignments during a specific timeframe. Arb 37 and PRC 436 Company demonstrated the severity of failing to report for overtime assignments. The discipline in the past for failure to follow a direct work order resulted in a written reminder. The Company did in this case show some compassion by only giving an Oral Reminder.

Decision

This case is closed without adjustment.
