

GIVE HOPE. GIVE LIFE.

Kevin is a 37-year-old husband and father of three, who is famous for his goofy humor, delicious cooking, devotion to his family, and helping others when they need it most. Kevin looked fine, but he didn't feel well one Sunday in March. His wife Susie took him and their 6-year-old twins to the ER for what they thought would be a quick stop on their way to dinner. Then they tested his blood. The diagnosis: Chronic Myeloid Leukemia.

He had been sick for years, never realizing the weight loss, low energy, inability to fight off infections and other symptoms weren't just a normal part of getting old as he would sometimes joke with his friends over a beer. He was sick. Really sick. Kevin's CURE is a bone marrow transplant.

Kevin has so much more life ahead of him and his family needs him. Please help give him a chance to fully live his life. It's too soon and he has so much more to give.
