Crew Complement - Grievance #146

When the 1950 agreement was signed it was agreed the job definitions currently in effect and interpretations of the same would remain in effect in the various Divisions for which they were negotiated until such time as job definitions can be negotiated system-wide. The C.I.O. definitions have been in effect since 1944 and no change has been made in the job duties nor have the classifications been changed on the hole digger crew. It was agreeable to the people at the time they were negotiated.

We see no alternative but to wait until such time as definitions can be negotiated system-wide. This case was withdrawn.
