Where do they stand? You're about to find out.

Dear Member,

Politics is about money. That's not an original idea, but it's an important one to keep in mind when voting this November.

Protecting your wallet is an important part of what this union does. And whether we like it or not, the people we elect can have a huge impact—directly and indirectly—on the money you take home.

That's why the union surveys candidates for political office in California.

Our members have a right to know which candidates will help us, and which ones can hurt us.

To the best of our ability, we find out where the candidates stand. After that it's up to you to make your own judgment about what's best for you, your family and your community.

In the pages that follow, Local 1245 presents the views of candidates for US Congress, California Assembly, California Senate, California governor, and other California state offices. We get their positions on wages, pensions, tax breaks, meal breaks, job training, trade policy: money issues. The rest is up to you.

Exercise your rights. Register to vote in California by October 23 and vote on November 7.

How we did it

IBEW Local 1245 created this election supplement to show where candidates for US Congress and the California Senate and Assembly stand on bread and butter issues. We think our members deserve the facts, not just recommendations.

Facts about incumbents were found in their voting records. Facts about challengers were gathered in our Candidate Survey.

The issues we selected were all voted on during the current (2005-2006) sessions of the US Congress and the California Legislature. The survey shows how the incumbents actually voted on the issues. Where the incumbent was absent or abstained, we list them as "Did Not Vote."

Non-incumbent candidates were sent a survey asking them to declare whether they were generally for or against these same bills. We also sent a summary of the bills' general content. All surveyed candidates received a follow-up letter extending the deadline for them to return the survey.

If a non-incumbent candidate refused to respond to our survey, they were awarded a "chicken." This seems an appropriate symbol for candidates who don't have the courage to say where they stand. If a non-incumbent candidate had the courage to respond to the survey, but chose not to take a position on a particular issue, their position on that issue was listed as "No Position."

We cannot attest to a candidates' truthfulness in this survey; we can only report what they say.

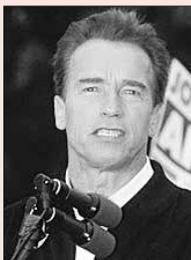

We have made every effort to include in our Candidate Survey all major party candidates for California Assembly and Senate within Local 1245's geographical jurisdiction. If a candidate failed to participate, it was by his or her own choice. Space did not permit us to survey candidates from minor parties.

Schwarzenegger: no

Arnold Schwarzenegger is a likeable guy and a great action hero. And give him credit: he recently gave in to legislative demands to increase the minimum wage, combat global warming, and fight the rising cost of prescription drugs.

But Schwarzenegger is a political chameleon who cannot be trusted to help working families when the election is over. Consider some of his actions that haven't been in the headlines but have real consequence for working families:

Since being elected, Schwarzenegger:

- Tried to get rid of the eight-hour day.
- Cut Workers' Compensation for permanently disabled workers by 50%.
- Tried to eliminate secure pensions for 1 million workers.
- Opposed health care coverage for working Californians.
- Tried to take away workers' legal right to a lunch break.
- Vetoed bills to limit offshoring of US jobs after taking contributions from companies that outsource.
- Took major contributions from Wal-Mart owners the same day he vetoed a bill that exposed Wal-Mart's health care scam.
- Tried to reduce nursing care in hospitals.

Working families need a governor we can rely on every year, not just election year. Arnie's not the man for the job.

Angelides for Governor

A man of action

When California was being looted by unregulated energy traders like Enron, Phil Angelides proposed a state Power Authority to protect Californians from the looters. The Power Authority became an important brick in the wall California built to protect the state from energy pirates.

Angelides has the experience and the savvy to put big ideas into action. For working people, Angelides has something substantial to offer. He's no movie action hero. But he's an action guy in real life, with a plan to build economic opportunities, invest in education, reward work, increase health coverage and balance the budget.

Build Economic Opportunities

- Tax cuts for small businesses.
- Micro loans to start and grow new businesses.
- Investment of state pension funds to spur the next wave of technological innovation and jobs in California.
- Creating high-wage jobs by developing and exporting clean fuels, vehicles, and energy-efficiency technology.

Invest in Education

- Target grants for innovative strategies for raising achievement.
- Strengthen counseling and outreach.
- Recruit and train 40,000 teachers.
- Roll back Schwarzenegger's college tuition and fee hikes and expand state scholarship aid.

Reward Work, Not Wealth

- Cut taxes for middle class families to help them meet the rising cost of housing, health care, college, and gasoline.
- Raise the minimum wage and index it to inflation.
- Restore for 3 years the top income tax rates on couples making more than $500,000 a year.

Increase Health Coverage and Control Costs

- Provide affordable health insurance for all children.
- Require corporations with more than 200 employees to offer health insurance coverage to their workers, lowering costs to taxpayers and responsible employers who are already covering their workers.

Phil Angelides has offered a real plan of action that puts working families first. He's no movie action hero, but he's just the man to put the action back into the California economy.

Race for US Senate

Feinstein: respected voice in the Capitol

Dianne Feinstein has become one of the most respected voices in the nation's capitol. When Feinstein takes a stand, even her most vocal opponents know that she will be a formidable advocate for her position.

She has been in the forefront of efforts to defend Social Security, deal with global warming, and rethink America's role in Iraq.

Feinstein is an outspoken advocate for preserving California's environment. She has been a leader in the fight against identity theft, and is a strong advocate for crime victims' rights.

In the most recent session of Congress, Feinstein backed efforts to protect overtime pay, raise the minimum wage, and protect workers' vacation and severance pay when their employers declare bankruptcy.

Feinstein isn't just a respected voice in Washington. She's our voice.

Mountjoy: no help for working people

If Dick Mountjoy cared about ordinary working people while he was serving in the California Senate, he sure had a funny way of showing it.

During his tenure, Mountjoy voted repeatedly against the overtime pay premium. He voted against a measure to protect older workers against age discrimination. He voted repeatedly against measures to strengthen job safety, and opposed legislation to improve benefits for injured workers.

He even introduced legislation of his own to slash benefits for victims of occupational repetitive stress injuries, for workers on permanent disability, and to force injured workers to reimburse a portion of their training and rehabilitation costs if they subsequently fail to find employment.

As a member of the California Legislature, Mountjoy got a chance to show his loyalties. They weren't with the working men and women of California. He has no vision for the future, no program to tackle the many challenges facing California, and no chance to win election to the US Senate. But Local 1245 members ought to make a special effort to make sure he is defeated by a huge margin this November.

Race for California Lieutenant Governor

Garamendi punishes fraud

John Garamendi says he wants to use the Lieutenant Governor's office to be "a forceful advocate" for children, seniors and families. Can he be counted on to follow through? His record suggests he can.

In the early 1990s, Garamendi wrote and sponsored the first universal healthcare bill ever to pass the California Legislature. The bill was ultimately vetoed, but Garamendi's interest in health care and consumer protection lived on.

As Insurance Commissioner Garamendi protected consumers and punished fraud and corporate greed. Among his accomplishments in that office: over $1 billion in insurance rebates, $22 billion in auto insurance savings, $24 million in additional homeowner benefits to fire victims, and $46 million in insurance company fines.

If elected Lt. Governor, Garamendi pledges to continue his efforts to provide every Californian access to high quality healthcare.

Garamendi also pledges to continue his long-standing commitment to education. He believes schools ought to be fully funded, and favors a five-year moratorium on increases to higher-education fees and tuition, while favoring more financial aid and grants for education.

Garamendi understands the link between education and jobs. He says he will seek to spark creation of high wage jobs, while ensuring the availability of training for new high-skill careers.

As Lt. Governor, Garamendi would have a seat on the State Lands Commission. He says he would use that position to promote conservation and alternative fuels, while opposing excessive oil company profits. He pledges to work with the governor and legislature to promote renewable energy and reduce dependence on carbon fuels.

Local 1245 endorses John Garamendi.

McClintock's miserable record

Tom McClintock, he can run, but he can't hide... from his record, that is. His votes speak a lot louder than any campaign brochure.

During his eight years in the California Legislature from 1997-2004, McClintock never gave workers a break. McClintock voted:

- Against preserving the state overtime pay premium.

- Against fines and prison terms for bosses who cause injury or death due to willful violation of job safety laws.
  - Against a bill to protect older workers from age discrimination.
  - Against a bill to provide unpaid family leave for workers to use when they need to stay home with sick children.
  - Against a bill to hike penalties for employers who cheat employees out of wages.
  - Against improved benefits for injured workers and unemployed workers.
  - Against a bill to inform taxpayers when taxes were used to export jobs.
- McClintock can run for office. But he can't hide from his miserable record.

Race for California Attorney General

Jerry Brown: works for us

Jerry Brown has been many things to many people: a law-and-order mayor, a reform-minded Secretary of State, a governor who pioneered renewable energy technology, a maverick candidate for US President.

Through it all, Jerry Brown has been unwavering in his support of working people. Often he has been on the front lines of important battles for workers' rights.

As governor, Brown established the first agricultural labor relations law in the country—a huge boost to the efforts of farm workers to combat intolerable working conditions.

He also provided crucial support in the long fight to establish collective bargaining rights for public employees. Many Local 1245 members today are the direct beneficiaries of Brown's support for this landmark legislation that brought our public employers to the bargaining table.

As governor, he significantly expanded apprenticeship programs. He created the California Worksite Education and Training Act. He mandated every high school district to establish clear graduation standards. He made California a world leader in solar energy and renewable energy technology.

Local 1245 endorses Jerry Brown.

Poochigian: If it helps workers, he's against it

If it might help average working people, Chuck Poochigian is against it.

Poochigian, now a candidate for Attorney General, has a long and shameful record as a California State Senator. He voted against a bill to hike penalties for employers who cheat employees out of wages. He voted against a bill to improve benefits for injured workers. He voted against a bill to improve benefits for unemployed workers. He voted against a bill to protect workers from secret monitoring.

The list goes on.

Poochigian voted against sick leave protections. He voted against a bill to inform taxpayers when their taxes were used to export jobs. He voted against a bill to protect workers' rights when they speak out against unsafe working conditions.

Remember when unregulated power companies like Enron were ripping off California ratepayers and driving Pacific Gas & Electric into bankruptcy? The legislature passed a bill to strengthen the state's hand in dealing with crooks and looters. McClintock voted against it.

Poochigian for Attorney General? No thanks.

Race for California Secretary of State

Bowen: a record of service

There's a reason why the Utility Reporter can give you the voting records of the candidates for office. The reason is Debra Bowen.

Bowen, while serving in the California Assembly, wrote the law that gives ordinary people on-line access to California's public records.

Bowen has played a leadership role in consumer protection, authoring the landmark law that makes it much more difficult for criminals to commit identity theft.

Last year Senator Bowen championed a bill to expose the sugar daddies who fund various ballot measures—further evidence of Bowen's commitment to the public's right to know.

Bowen's opponent has rarely sided with working people. Bowen, on the other hand, has been a consistent supporter of our rights. She has backed bills to protect or expand sick leave, overtime pay, unemployment benefits, workers compensation benefits, and others.

On the critical issue of protecting the integrity of elections—which is the Secretary of State's most important responsibility—Bowen's opponent failed to show the necessary independence. He recertified Diebold electronic voting machines before receiving the results of federal tests that he himself had ordered.

Debra Bowen has the intelligence, the integrity and the experience to restore confidence in California's electoral process. She will make a great Secretary of State.

McPherson didn't protect workers

Give Bruce McPherson some credit: when the California Senate passed a bill to protect older workers against age discrimination, McPherson voted for it. But that's about it when it comes to supporting working people. McPherson's record shows he really doesn't give a hoot.

During his years in the Senate, McPherson voted against overtime pay protections. He voted against expanding sick leave to let employees care for sick family members. He voted against better benefits for injured workers every chance he got.

McPherson voted against a bill to protect workers from secret monitoring and against a bill to protect workers' rights when they speak out against unsafe working conditions. He voted against sick leave protections and against improved benefits for unemployed workers.

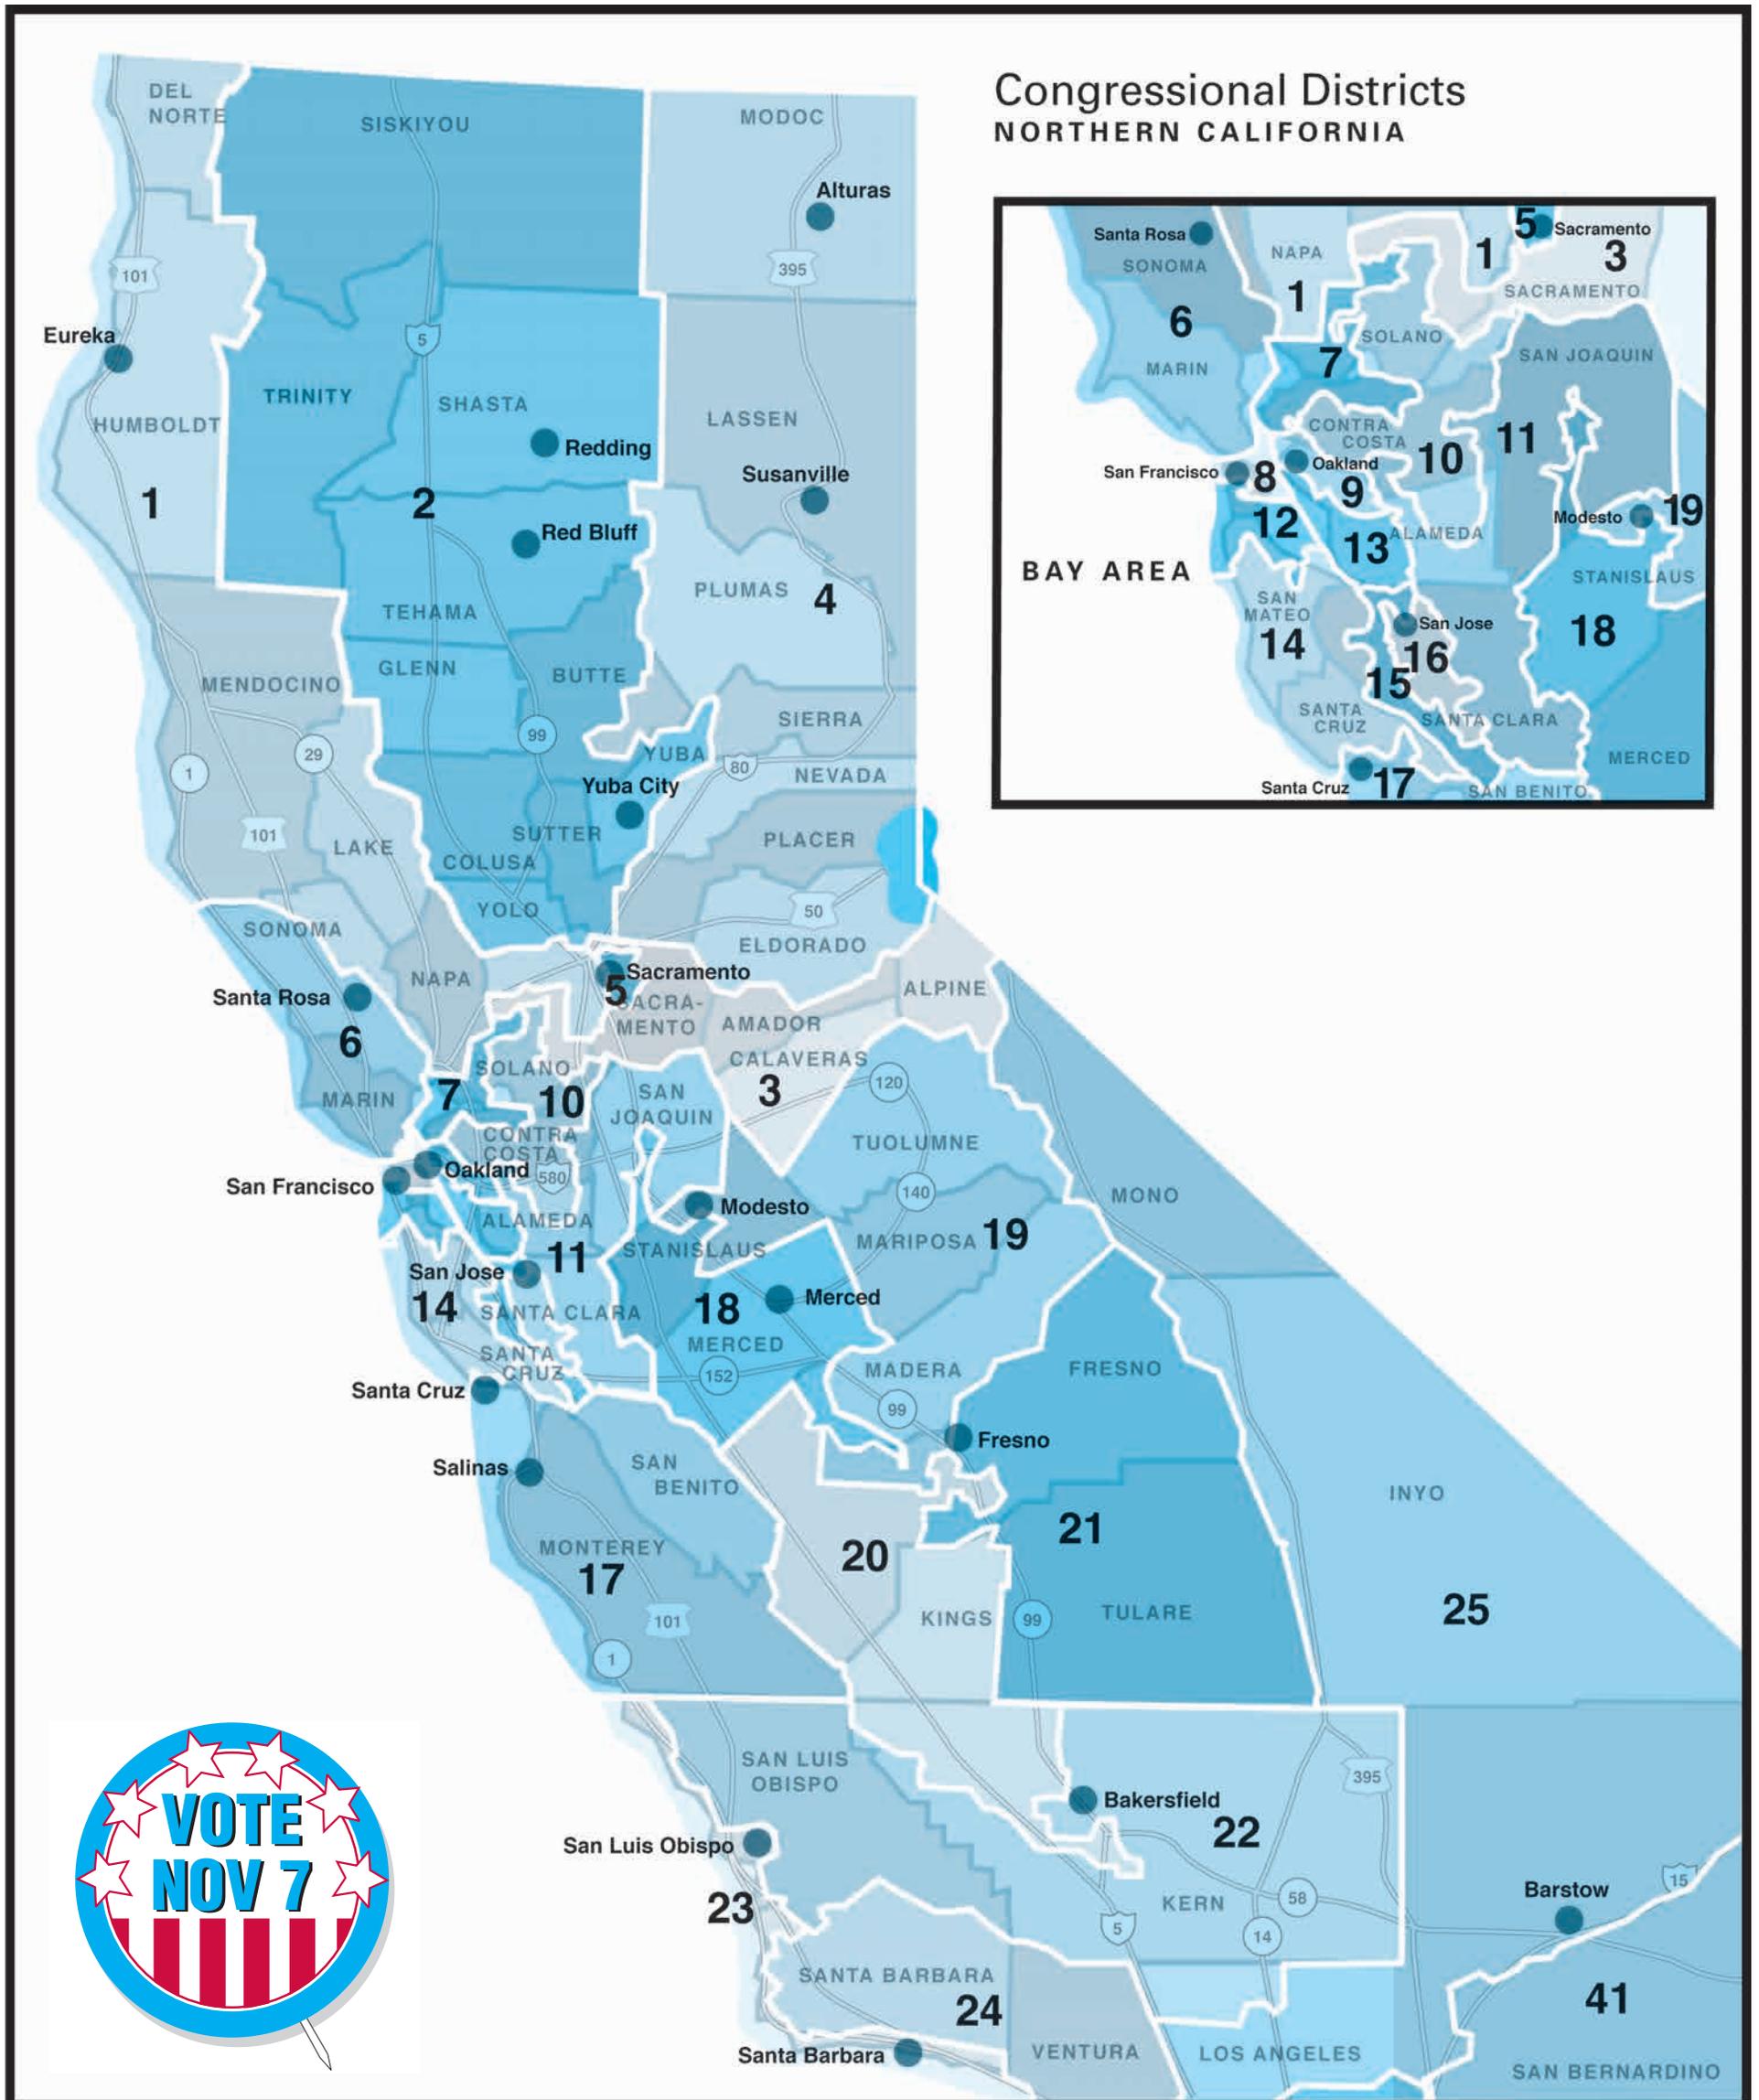

McPherson also voted against a bill to curb the power of energy pirates like Enron at a time when they were plundering California and driving PG&E into bankruptcy.

As the appointed Secretary of State, McPherson has fallen short on one of his most important responsibilities: safeguarding the fairness of the election process. Despite serious concerns over accuracy and security, McPherson recertified the Diebold electronic voting machines.

McPherson's supporters try to shine up his image by calling him a "moderate" Republican. But on issues that make a difference in the lives of working people, McPherson has failed to deliver.

Hold Congress Accountable

Choosing your member of Congress shouldn't be a guessing game. And it doesn't have to be. Locate your Congressional District on this map. Then use the Candidate Survey on the following pages to find out where the candidates in your district stand on the issues.

“Free” trade: more US jobs at risk

The Republican-controlled Congress that passed the Central America Free Trade Agreement in 2005 insisted that CAFTA would be good for US jobs. Why? Because that sounds a whole lot better than standing up and confessing: “We love CAFTA because it allows big corporations to move American jobs to other countries, exploit cheap labor and make scads of money.”

But we’ve been here before. Remember NAFTA? According to the Economic Policy Institute, the North American

Key vote: HR 3010
(Amendment)

Free Trade Agreement of 1994 resulted in a net loss of one million US jobs. CAFTA will also be a job-losing proposition for US workers.

Trade could be a terrific engine of economic growth—if it is fair. The way to make trade agreements fair is to include enforceable provisions that protect core labor standards around the world, and to make a commitment to effectively enforce domestic labor laws. Core labor standards include freedom

Wal-Mart, child labor, and sweetheart deals

Key issue: HR 3010
(Amendment)

When Wal-Mart was caught using children to operate hazardous equipment, the company was fined $135,540 in civil penalties. Ouch. For the members of the Walton family who occupy five positions on the Top-10 list of richest Americans—with a collective wealth of $75 billion—that must have hurt a lot.

But it turned out this mild handspanking wasn’t a spanking at all. As part of its settlement with Wal-Mart, the US Labor Department agreed to give Wal-Mart a 15-day advance notice before conducting any future child labor or wage and hour investigations. Think that’ll be enough time for Wal-Mart to clean house before the next inspection?

Labor law violations are just one more example of Wal-Mart’s philosophy of exploitation. Wal-Mart’s low wages and poor benefits force many employees to rely on public aid. In fact, taxpayers spend about $420,750 a year on public aid programs for each Wal-Mart store with 200 workers because Wal-Mart workers often can’t afford health insurance or food for their children, according to the UC Berkeley Center for Labor Research and Education.

Some members of Congress objected to the sweetheart deal that gives Wal-Mart advance notice of inspections. They introduced an amendment to HR 3010, an appropriation bill, in an effort to stop the sweetheart deal.

Unfortunately, the amendment failed on a June 24, 2005 vote of 165-234. How do the candidates in your Congressional District feel about giving sweetheart deals to Wal-Mart? See pages 6-9 to find out.

But do politicians practice what they preach?

Job training: a sound investment

A skilled workforce is the muscle of a modern economy. Consider:

Skills enhance employability. Employment generates income. Income enables spending. Spending creates demand. Demand leads to investment, which generates more employment.

Job training to create a skilled workforce is not only a sound investment, it is a vital one. It is so important that politicians of every political stripe praise its value.

But not all politicians practice what they preach. In a key Congressional vote last year, Congress voted to cut overall funding for critical job training programs, including the US Employment Service and the adult and dislocated worker programs at the Department of Labor.

Key Vote: HR 27

Instead of strengthening job training programs and enhancing job-search assistance for jobless Americans, H.R. 27 represented a step backward.

How did your representative vote on job training? Where does the opponent stand on this issue? See page 6-9.

Does your representative care about your pension security?

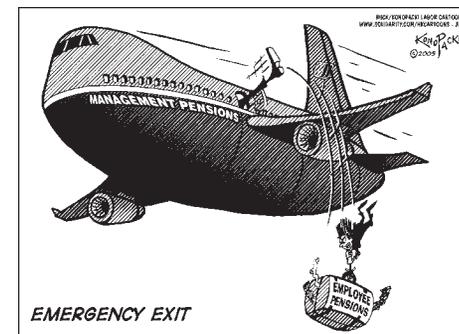

Should employees enjoy the same level of pension security as top executives? This question was at the heart of the debate over a pension protection amendment considered by the US Congress in 2005, sparked by the bankruptcy of United Airlines.

The airline had exploited loopholes in the law to disguise the true financial standing of its pension funds. United Airlines knowingly underfunded its pensions and hid the truth from its workers about their retirement security. At the same time, the company was investing in junk bonds and dot-coms. The $10 billion shortfall at United was only revealed when the company asked the bankruptcy court to terminate its pension plans.

But the top execs took a different view of their own pension plans. Chairman Glenn Tilton squirreled away his $4.5 million retirement fund in a trust that could not be touched during bankruptcy proceedings.

When companies use bankruptcy laws to terminate their obligations to employees, they transfer these liabilities to the federally-funded Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. This hurts workers in two ways.

Key Vote: HR 3010

First, PBGC in some cases will not pay the full pension amount that is owed to a worker. Second, the funds provided by the PBGC come right out of the pockets of US taxpayers, so that tax-paying workers end up paying for the pension benefit that the company had promised to provide.

The pension protection amendment to HR 3010, which passed June 24, 2005 on a 219-185 vote, was an attempt to protect workers’ pensions. Where do the candidates in your Congressional District stand on this important issue? See pages 6-9.

Last year’s tax cut: we got cut out

The tax cuts passed by the House of Representatives in late 2005 provides significant relief for American taxpayers. Unfortunately, Local 1245 members won’t be among those American taxpayers whose tax relief is “significant.”

As part of the budget reconciliation process, which included tax cut and spending cut legislation, the Bush Administration and congressional Republican leaders sought some $70 billion in tax cuts—mostly for the wealthy—which were offset by huge spending cuts in important domestic programs.

Ultimately the House passed a $56 billion tax cut bill that showers three-quarters of the benefits on investors who earn more than $100,000 a year. Households earning more than $1 million a year get 40% of the tax cuts, or an average annual reduction of nearly $51,000. Middle-income families receive only 2% of the benefit of the capital gains and dividend rate cuts, the centerpiece of the Republican plan, resulting in an average annual benefit of only $7.

The bill passed 234-197 on Dec. 8, 2005. Did your Congressional Representative support or oppose this tax bill that cut you out? Where does the challenger stand? See pages 6-9.

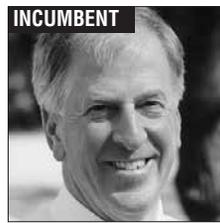

Do the candidates in your district stand for or against working people on these important issues?

We need a voice

Service Rep, Stockton*

Al Fortier

We need a check on the President

“Why is it important to vote? To take back the House. We need more of a check on the President. Everything is just being passed—there’s no check on him. Look what’s happened. The national debt is going beyond our imagination now. It’s something my grandkids will have to live with.”

You don't vote, you don't help

“All brothers and sisters should make sure they vote and encourage others to vote so we can get fair representatives for labor elected. It is vital for all workers to get back control of the Senate and Congress so we can have representatives who back issues that will benefit all workers and their families. You don't vote, you don't help.”

Particularly important for women to vote

“The union's at stake. This is the time we have to show our solidarity and vote for politicians who are going to be good for working families. And I think it's particularly important for women to vote because of all the women who died for women's right to vote—so they didn't die in vain.”

*Gloria Flores

Constantly under attack

“As a union man, I feel like I'm constantly under attack by the Republicans. And the Republican Party has the executive and the judicial branches of government, so I'm looking forward to working people taking control of one of those branches so we can stem the tide of all the anti-union legislation.”

Protecting the right to meal breaks at work

Workers need lunch breaks. That should be a non-controversial idea. Rules requiring lunch breaks have been part of California law since 1947.

But some employers are so arrogant they think they can deny your right to a meal break. In 2005, an Oakland jury awarded $172 million to 116,000 Wal-Mart workers who were systematically denied lunch breaks.

Bad employers found a friend in the California Division of Labor Standards Enforcement. In 2005, this state agency decided to issue regulations to weaken the right to a meal break.

At three public hearings, workers from construction and other industries testified about the pressure they face to work without taking breaks and the need for more protection—not less protection.

The California Legislature took action to defend the right to meal breaks at work. ACR 43 declared that the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement cannot create regulations that take away a right to a lunch break. The measure passed the Assembly 44-31 on April 14, 2005 and passed the Senate 23-14 on July 11, 2005.

See page 13-14 and 17-22 to find out how candidates in your Assembly and Senate districts stand on the right to meal breaks.

Raising the minimum wage

Here's the hard truth about keeping a lid on the minimum wage: Low-wage workers are relying on public assistance to make ends meet. Which means that low-wage employers are essentially shifting their labor costs onto the public.

Put another way: If all workers in the state earned a minimum wage of $8 per hour, public assistance program costs would be reduced by $2.7 billion, according to a 2004 report by the Center for Labor Research & Education at the University of California Berkeley.

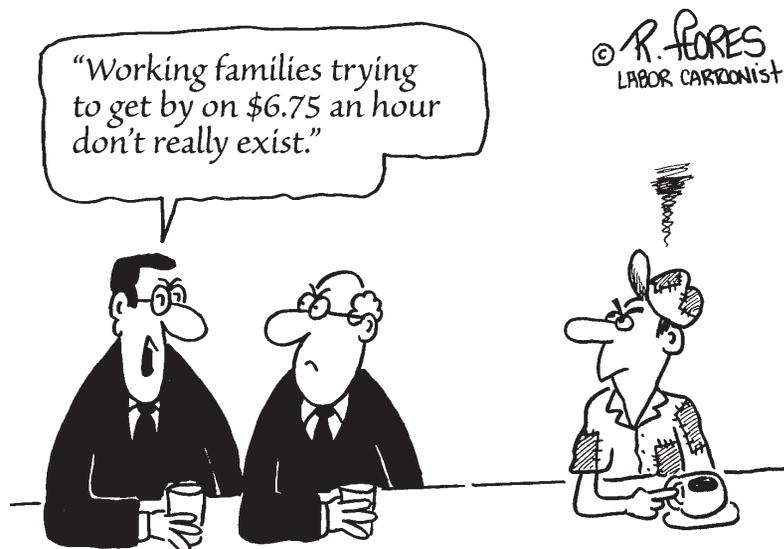

A minimum wage hike was finally passed into law, and the governor has promised to sign it. But many legislators consistently vote against a minimum wage hike. They claim a hike will force employers to lay off workers. But numerous studies have failed to find any systematic, significant job loss associated with minimum wage increases.

AB 48, the minimum wage bill that was vetoed by Gov. Schwarzenegger last year, would have raised the minimum wage from $6.75 to $7.75 over a two-year period and then indexed it to the cost of living. The Assembly passed the measure 49-30 on June 2, 2005; the Senate passed the measure 26-14 on September 7, 2005.

Where do the candidates in your legislative districts stand on raising the minimum wage? See pages 13-14 and 17-22.

Do your taxes encourage job exports?

Losing your job to someone in another country who works for low wages and no benefits is not an experience you want to have. But America's blue collar jobs have been going "off shore" for decades, and in recent years white collar jobs have been heading in the same direction.

In a global economy dominated by global corporations, individuals don't have much power to stop the export of American jobs. But we deserve to know if our tax dollars are being used to encourage those job exports.

Last year the California Legislature attempted to lift the veil of secrecy on how our tax dollars are being spent. AB 524 would have required successful bidders for state contracts to fill out a questionnaire detailing what portions of the contract work will be performed outside the United States.

Key vote: AB 524

This bill would not have stopped the off-shoring of tax-supported jobs. It simply said that Californians have a right to know how their taxpayer dollars are being spent and to whom those dollars are going.

Taxpayer dollars going overseas to pay workers to do jobs that could be done in California, by California workers, makes bad state fiscal policy.

The bill, which Gov. Schwarzenegger ultimately vetoed, was passed by the Assembly on a 47-32 vote on June 1, 2005. It was passed by the Senate on a 24-15 vote on Sept. 6, 2005.

Where do the candidates in your legislative districts stand on your right to know about tax-supported off-shoring of California jobs? See pages 13-14 and 17-22.

Protecting public employee pensions

Workers deserve secure pensions whether they work in the private or public sector. Currently, most public sector employees in California are covered by a defined benefit plan which provides participants with a guaranteed annual pension based upon age at retirement, years of service and salary.

But some legislators are hostile to retirement security for public sector workers. They want to convert traditional defined-benefit pension plans into less secure defined-contribution plans, similar to 401(k) plans. Last year Gov. Schwarzenegger proposed that state employees hired after 2007 be required to participate in defined contribution retirement plans. Although he did not succeed, this threat is still very real.

Not all 401(k) plans are alike. Without safeguards, public employees could find themselves paying fees on tens of thousands of individual investment accounts and receiving diminished returns while Wall Street brokers walk away with billions.

Union-sponsored legislation, AB 310, provides protections and safeguards to public employees enrolled in defined contribution investment plans. If public employees are going to be deprived of secure defined benefit plans, at least they ought to have assurances that the new plans will be designed for their benefit, not the benefit of Wall Street brokers.

AB 310 establishes high standards for investment providers, and limits the fees investment providers can charge. AB 310 also establishes that, in the case of a breach of duty, the investment provider will be liable for treble damages.

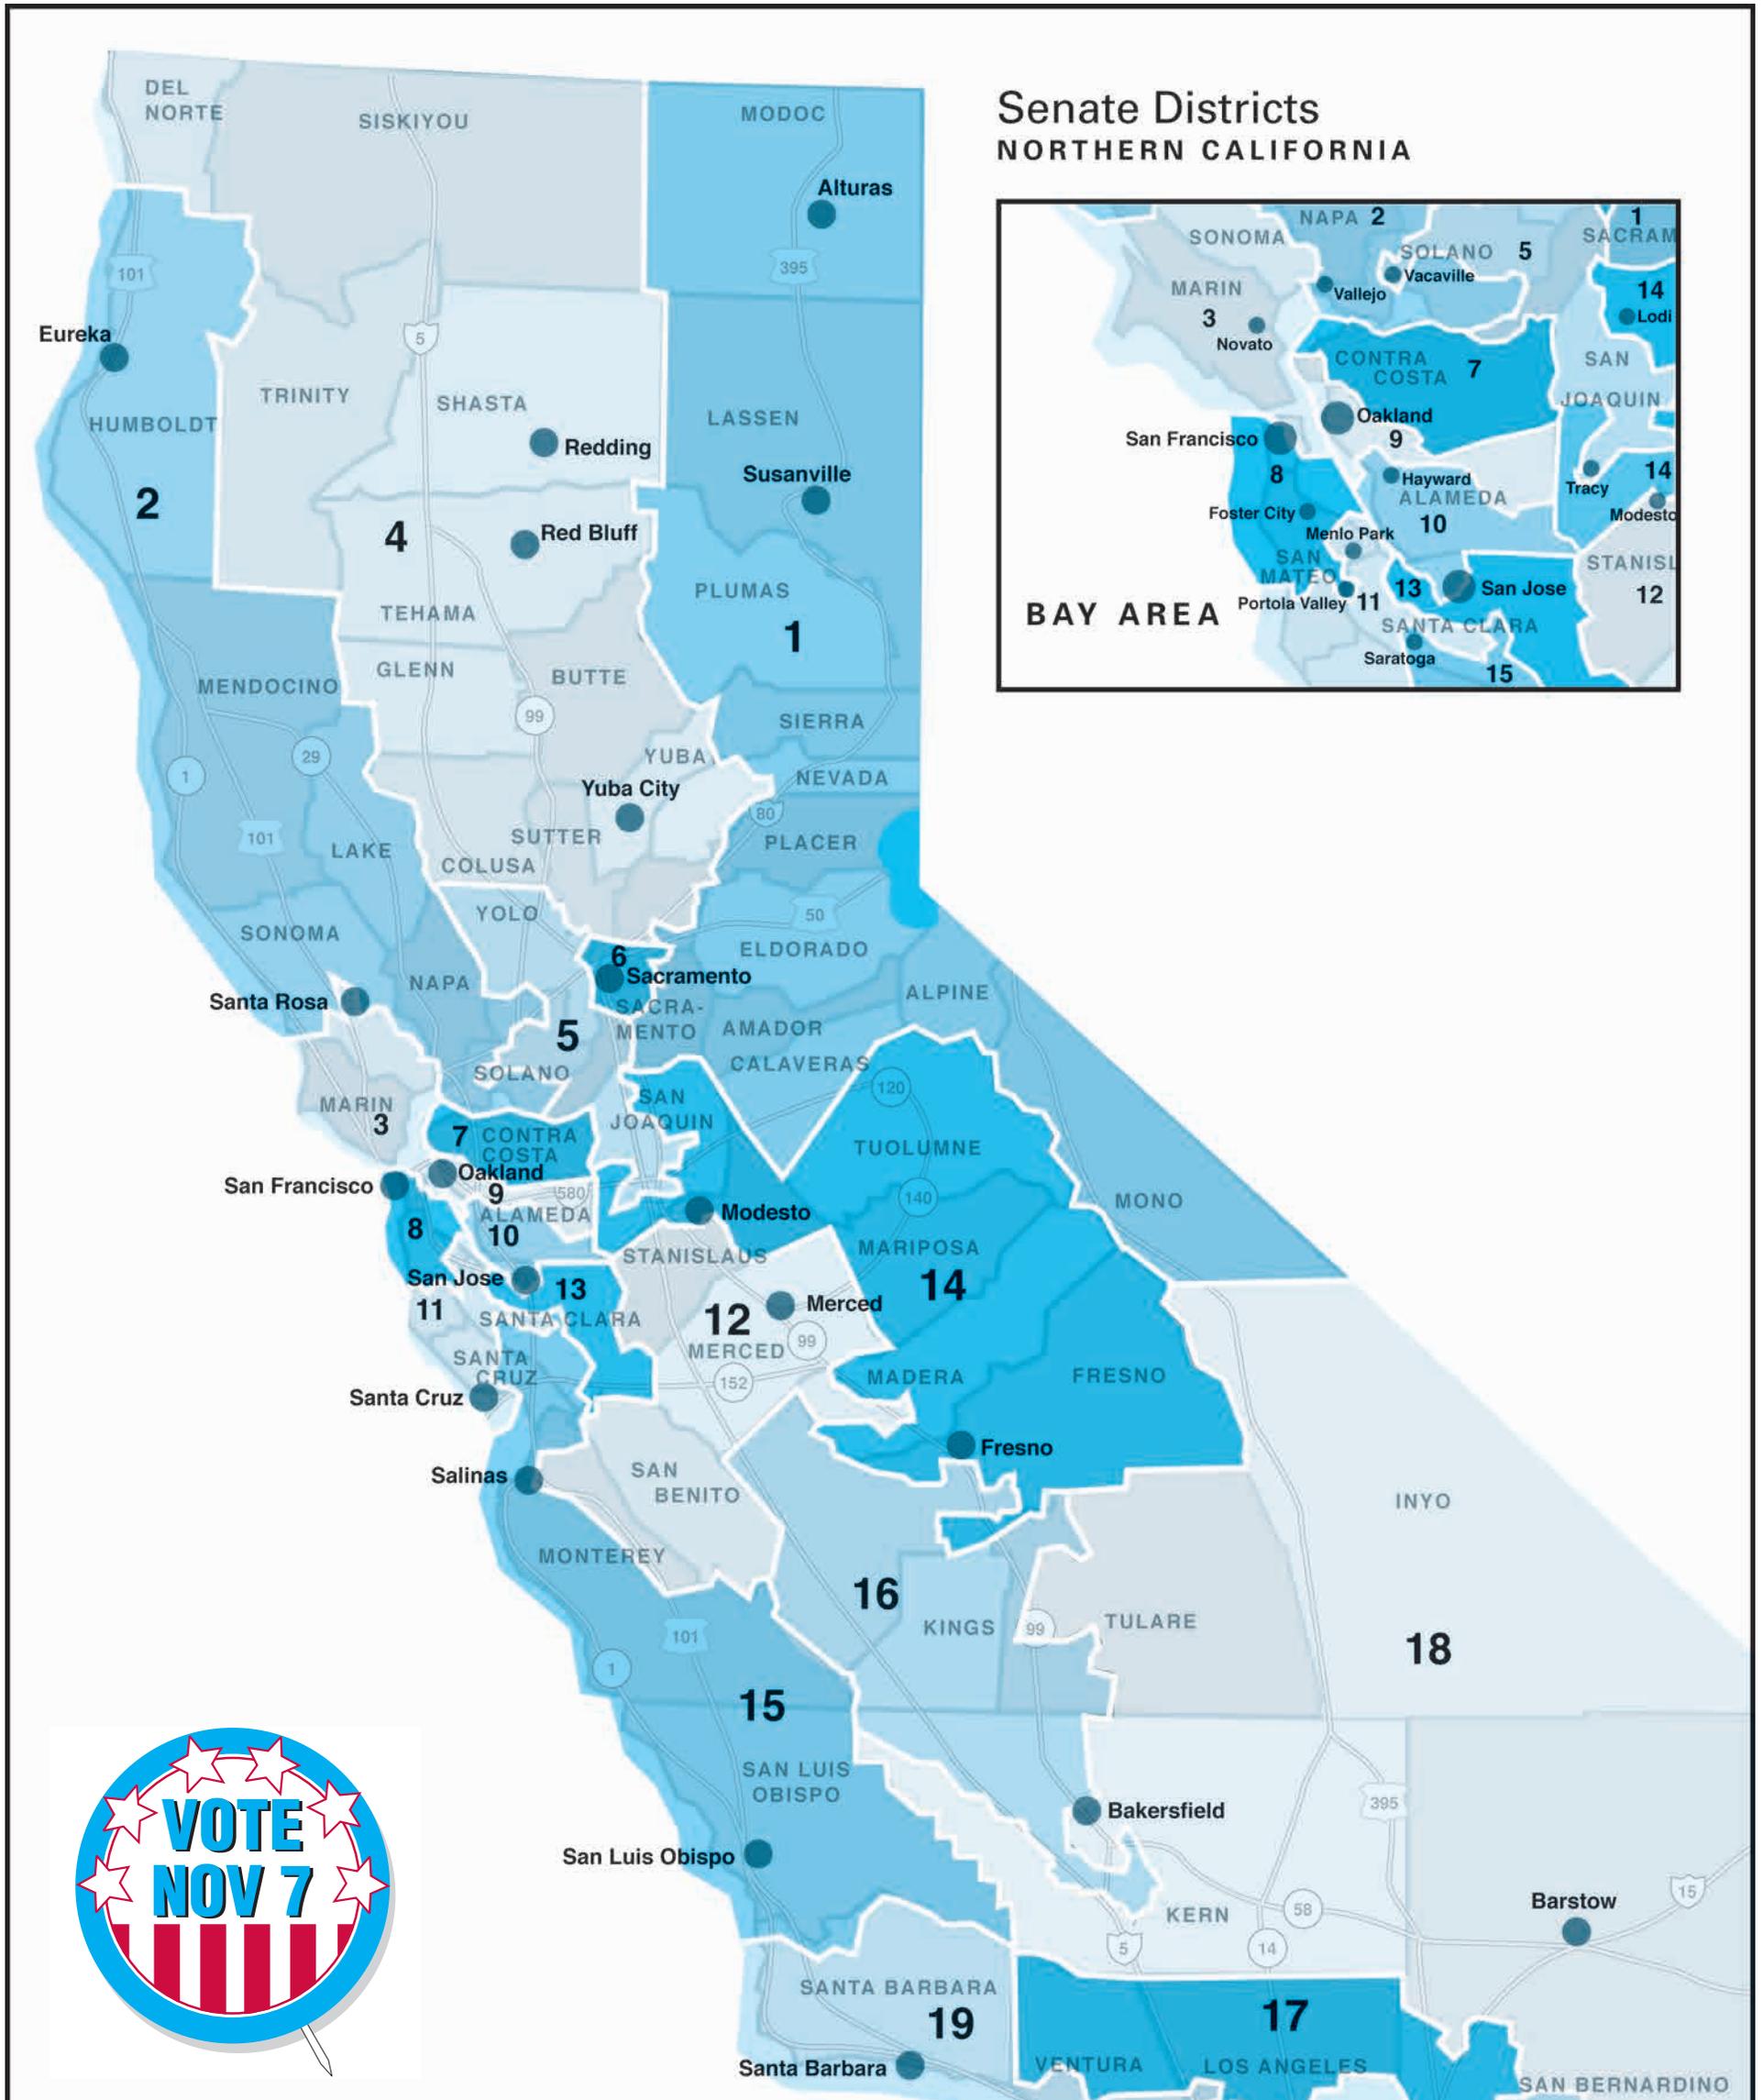

AB 310 passed the Assembly 44-33 on May 26, 2005; it passed the Senate 23-14 on Sept. 30, 2005. Unfortunately, the bill was vetoed by Gov. Schwarzenegger.

Where do the candidates in your legislative districts stand on protection of public employee pension funds? See pages 13-14 and 17-22.

Pension system will be a thing of the past

“If we have another two years of what we’ve put up with for the past six, then we’ll be losing more work to overseas interests. Clerical workers ought to take special interest because they’re particularly at risk. Also, the pension system as we know it-the defined benefit system-will be a thing of the past if we can’t change the direction things are going.”

My family and future at risk

“My family and my future is at risk. We just need a fair shake in the economic world for ourselves and our members. Generally speaking, with Republicans we don’t get a fair shake. Business gets more than a fair shake. We need to elect more Democrats to get a better deal.”

*Landis Marttila,

Republicans are eliminating the middle class

“Our jobs are at stake. With a Republican President we need more Democrats in Congress and the Senate to keep him in check. The Republicans are eliminating the middle class-creating a two-class society: the rich and the poor.”

Harder for normal people to just live

“To me it’s a privilege to vote. I can voice my opinion on what I want. Voting is our right as citizens. We have rising medical costs. People’s wages are at stake and everything out there they are trying to take away from us. They’re making it harder and harder for normal people to just live in a normal way. If we don’t vote, how are we going to change that?”

The Future is on the line

“The future is on the line every time you go to the polls. You fail to vote, you have to accept what’s given to you. Participate-it’s the American way of doing things. Working people have several things at stake. We need to elect a new governor. Schwarzenegger has tried to take away lunch breaks, overtime pay, and he has taken away some Workers Compensation provisions. It’s a picture of what can happen to you if the wrong people are in power.”

Focus on the real issues

“We have a major stake in this election. If we don’t get out and vote we’re giving others the right to decide things for us, and our voice is not going to be heard. It’s very important for union members to sit down and make a decision that is good for us as working people. ## California Ballot Propositions 1A through 1E

“Rebuild California Plan” needs and deserves our support

California’s population will reach 50 million in the next 20 years—twice what our current infrastructure was designed for. It can’t be rebuilt overnight.

The Rebuild California Plan is a long-term plan to improve our highways, schools, housing and flood protection. It begins making steady improvements now—and over the next 10 years—to sustain our economy and our quality of life for the long term.

The Rebuild California Plan uses the taxes we already pay to build what we need, and includes strict accountability about how the money is spent, including public reports and regular audits.

Support for Rebuild California spans the political spectrum—from the Chamber of Commerce to the California Labor Federation. IBEW Local 1245 supports all five propositions in Rebuild California, which are described here.

Proposition 1A: Transportation Funding Protection

This constitutional amendment would protect transportation funding for traffic congestion relief projects, safety improvements, and local streets and roads.

Proposition 1A prohibits the state sales tax on motor vehicle fuels from being used for any purpose other than transportation improvements. Proposition 1A:

- Authorizes loans of these funds only in the case of severe state fiscal

- hardship.
  - Requires loans of revenues from states sales tax on motor vehicle fuels to be fully repaid with the three years.
  - Restricts loans to no more than twice in any 10-year period.
- The Legislative Analyst says there are no revenue effects or cost effects from Proposition 1A. It increases stability of funding to transportation in 2007 and thereafter.

Proposition 1B: highway safety, traffic reduction, air quality, and port security

Proposition 1B would jump-start traffic relief, mass transit, and safety improvements throughout California. This bond issue of just under $20 billion would fund the construction of new roads and transportation improvement projects, enhancing mobility and the economy.

Proposition 1B makes safety improvements and repairs to state highways and upgrades freeways to reduce congestion. It also:

- Repairs local streets and roads.
- Upgrades highways along major transportation corridors.

- Improves seismic safety of local bridges.
- Improves anti-terrorism security at shipping ports.

By expanding public transit and helping complete the state’s network of car pool lanes, Proposition 1B would also reduce air pollution.

Proposition 1C: housing and emergency shelter

Many of our communities face severe problems of housing affordability, homelessness, and domestic violence.

Over 360,000 Californians are homeless every night. Last year, 5,108 women and children were turned away from domestic violence shelters, because they were full. Housing affordability for working families in California is at historic lows.

Proposition 1C tackles these problems head-on by providing:

- More emergency shelter beds for battered women and their children, and homeless families with children.
- Clean and safe housing for low-income senior citizens.
- Homeownership assistance for the disabled, military veterans, and working families.
- Repairs and accessibility improvements to apartments for families and disabled citizens.

- Housing for homeless foster youths.
- Proposition 1C would create 87,000 jobs, an important boost for the state’s economy.

The Chamber of Commerce notes that, “This measure requires independent audits, limits administrative expenses, and contains strict accountability provisions to ensure the funds are used as promised.”

Proposition 1C provides that the state issue bonds totaling $2.85 billion paid from existing state funds at an average annual cost of $204 million over the 30 year life of the bonds. Proposition 1C requires reporting and publication of annual independent audited reports showing use of funds, and limits administration and overhead costs.

Proposition 1C is supported by Habitat for Humanity, AARP, California Partnership to End Domestic Violence, among many others.

Proposition 1D: Kindergarten-University Public Education Facilities

Proposition 1D is a fundamental investment in California’s future.

Over a million students are trying to learn in schools with at least 75% more students than they were designed for. Proposition 1D will begin building the additional schools that our children will need to gain a quality education and become the productive citizens that California will need for assuring our future prosperity.

This $10.4 million bond issue will provide funding needed to:

- Relieve public school overcrowding and repair older schools.
- Improve earthquake safety.
- Fund vocational educational facilities in public schools.
- Repair and upgrade existing public

college and university buildings.

- Build new classrooms to accommodate the growing student enrollment in the California Community Colleges, the University of California, and the California State University.

Bond funds must be spent according to strict accountability measures.

Proposition 1D invests in the construction of approximately 6,500 new K-12 classrooms and 3,000 community college classrooms. It will repair 31,000 classrooms. Proposition will build science, engineering labs and classrooms as well as providing 3,000 vocational education facilities.

Proposition 1D is supported by both Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger and by Democratic candidate for governor Phil Angelides.

Proposition 1E: Disaster Preparedness and Flood Prevention Bond

Proposition 1E rebuilds and repairs California's most vulnerable flood control structures to protect homes and prevent loss of life from flood-related disasters, including levee failures, flash floods, and mudslides. This $4.09 billion bond act protects California's drinking water supply system by rebuilding delta levees that are vulnerable to earthquakes and storms.

It is an indisputable fact that California continually faces natural disasters—from earthquakes and fires to floods and mudslides. Proposition 1E helps California prepare for these natural disasters and ensure a clean water supply.

Hurricane Katrina made it very clear that we cannot continue to neglect our unsafe levees and flood control systems. One catastrophic flood would impact the entire state and disrupt the supply of clean drinking water to major cities.

Proposition 1E expedites urgent projects to protect homes and lives across the state:

- Urgent repairs and essential improvements to levees and flood control facilities.
- Increased flood protection for urban areas.

- Evaluation and repair of the current flood control system.

Outdated water and sewer systems can threaten drinking water supplies, pollute streams, and foul beaches. Some cities rely on water mains and sewers more than a century old that can fail at any time. Experts say that water pressure inside the pipes is often the only thing keeping them from collapsing.

In 2001, sewer spills and overflows forced officials to issue over 2,000 beach closings and health advisories. Spills and overflows are generally caused by overused and antiquated wastewater systems.

Proposition 1E helps ensure that clean water is available for all Californians all the time by providing funds to rebuild out-of-date systems to prevent pollution and safeguard water sources.

Proposition 1E includes annual audits and tough fiscal safeguards to ensure the money is spent wisely.

Proposition 87: Getting Ahead of the Curve on Energy

Currently, oil companies pay California almost nothing to drill, while they pay billions of dollars in drilling fees to every other oil producing state.

The federal energy bill of 2005 turned its back on clean energy, but California doesn't have to. Our state can light the way to a future of renewable energy technologies that don't heat the planet and that create the next generation of jobs in the energy industry.

That's why IBEW Local 1245, the California Labor Federation and dozens of other groups are supporting Proposition 87, the California Clean Energy Initiative.

Proposition 87 will direct $4 billion to reduce California's dependence on gasoline and diesel by 25% over the next 10 years. The effort will be funded by oil drilling fees paid by oil companies, not by consumers.

Prop 87 will reduce our use of oil by expanding the use of existing technologies, funding the development of improved and new technologies, and brings alternative fuel and energy technologies to the market faster.

Prop 87 will provide financial incentives to make clean energy options more affordable in order to expand their use. By reducing oil consumption, Prop 87 will reduce pollution that causes global warming, asthma, lung disease and cancer.

California deserves its fair share. Currently, oil companies pay California almost nothing to drill, while they pay billions of dollars in drilling fees to every other oil producing state. Prop 87 will set California's oil drilling fees at levels similar to those in Oklahoma, Alaska, and Texas at no cost to consumers and with no increase at the pump. The California Attorney General has confirmed that Prop 87 makes it illegal for oil companies to raise gas prices or to pass the cost of the fee to consumers.

Oil companies are not likely to suffer too much from the financial impact of Proposition 87. In 2005, the CEOs of the largest 15 oil companies averaged $32.7 million each in compensation, compared with "just" $11.6 million each for CEOs at all major U.S. firms, according to a study released Aug. 30 by the Institute for Policy Studies.

Prop 87 will fund:

- Consumer rebates for the purchase of alternative fuel vehicles.
- Incentives for increased use of wind, solar and other renewable energies.
- Assistance to local governments to upgrade public vehicle fleets (emergency, school bus, waste disposal, mass transit).
- Matching funds to make new technologies available to the public by clearing hurdles such as engine certification, crash-testing, and Underwriters' Laboratory approval.
- An alternative fuel infrastructure (filling stations, etc.).
- University research.
- Workforce training.

The California Energy Alternatives Program Authority will oversee Prop 87 funds. The nine-member Authority will consist of business, environmental, energy, and public health experts. As a state agency, it will be bound by existing conflict of interest, open meeting and competitive bidding laws. Prop 87 contains additional accountability, conflict of interest, and competitive bidding provisions.

Prop 87 is supported by the American Lung Association of California, the Coalition for Clean Air, the Foundation for Taxpayer and Consumer Rights, Nobel Prize winning scientists, university researchers, labor unions, and environmental, consumer, local government and public health organizations.

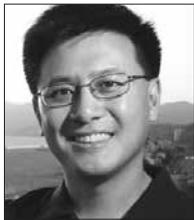

It's time to get ahead of the curve on clean energy. Vote "Yes" on Proposition 87.

Race for State Controller

Chiang: qualified and committed

John Chiang has both the experience and the values to be a State Controller that working people can trust.

His qualifications include an honors degree in finance and a law degree from Georgetown University Law Center. His experience came in the trenches as an attorney in the State Controller's office over a decade ago, followed by many years of service on the State Board of Equalization.

His values can be seen in a courageous act he undertook as a member of that Board—not because it was part of his job but just because it was right: he played a leadership role in helping “Justice for Janitors” organize the janitors in the building where the Board of Equalization has offices.

Chiang has also worked to crack down on the underground economy. Chiang understood that the underground economy not only exploits working people, it robs the state of needed revenue and cheats law-abiding taxpayers.

As a member of the Board of Equalization, Chiang has spearheaded free tax and finance seminars for Californians, and provided free income tax assistance to low income residents, seniors, veterans and non-profit agencies.

Chiang pledges to close corporate tax loopholes and make big oil and insurance companies pay their fair share.

That's a tall order. But John Chiang deserves the opportunity to give it a try.

Strickland spat on overtime pay

Tony Strickland for State Controller? It's a thought.

Here's where he stands on the issues, based on his six years in the California Assembly:

Time-and-a-half premium pay for work in excess of 8 hours a day: Strickland voted against it. Twice.

Improved compensation for injured workers? Against it.

Should we put restrictions on the secret monitoring of employees. Strickland's against that.

Well then, maybe we should increase the monitoring of corporations who move jobs out of the country? No, Strickland can't go for that kind of monitoring. He voted against it.

A modest increase in unemployment benefits? Against it.

Protections for employees who speak out against safety hazards at work? Nope, Strickland didn't like that either.

Let employees use sick leave to care for an ailing family member? Strickland apparently thought that would be bad for business. He voted against it.

How about employers who cheat their employees out of their wages? Should we increase the penalty from $50 to $100? That's too much, Strickland decided. He voted against it.

Tony Strickland's website proudly proclaims that he has spent the past several years rallying fiscal conservatives to advocate for less regulation of business. This helps explain why Strickland, during the energy crisis of 2000-2001, voted against a measure to exert more regulatory control over the energy pirates who were ripping off California to the tune of $70 billion.

Strickland's "fiscal conservatism" is a phony package. California voters aren't likely to buy it. And they shouldn't.

Race for State Treasurer

Bill Lockyer: fighting our fight

During his service in the California Legislature and again as Attorney General, Bill Lockyer wasn't just a politician we could talk to. He was fighting our fight.

As a legislator, Lockyer:

- Led the fight in the legislature and the courts to oppose Gov. Wilson's attack on overtime pay.
- Wrote legislation requiring more safety inspections in high-hazard industries, and helped pass Prop. 97, which re-established Cal-OSHA after it was abolished by Gov. Deukmejian.
- Fought raids on workers' pensions and appointed a labor representative to the Public Employees Retirement Board.
- Fought for health insurance for uninsured working families.

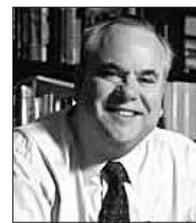

As Attorney General, Lockyer continued to be a vigilant and effective advocate for the interests of ordinary Californians. Lockyer worked to:

- Protect seniors against scam artists.
- Protect women from domestic violence.
- Help victims of crime.
- Expand the use of DNA to help solve crimes.

Perhaps most memorably, Attorney General Lockyer dragged unregulated price-gouging energy pirates into court to recover the money that was stolen from Californians during the energy crisis. Despite significant obstacles erected by the federal government—which sided with Enron and other price gougers—Lockyer won enforcement settlements totaling more than $5 billion to date.

Now Lockyer is on the threshold of becoming California's next State Treasurer. There are good reasons why we should support him:

- The Treasurer serves on the board of the Public Employees' Retirement System, which holds billions in worker pension funds, including the pensions of some Local 1245 members.

- The Treasurer's office finances a variety of public works needed for the state's future, including schools, higher education facilities and transportation projects.

Working people need a proven friend in this extremely important post. Bill Lockyer has earned our trust by fighting our fight. Local 1245 strongly endorses Lockyer for State Treasurer.

Claude Parrish: no help here

Claude Parrish, candidate for State Treasurer, once told Cal-Tax Digest he was concerned that California was perceived as “unfriendly toward business.” As a member of the Board of Equalization, he said, “My goal is to try and make us as friendly as I possibly can.”

Nothing wrong with that. Except that the policies that business sees as “friendly” may not be the same policies that working people would see as friendly.

To see where a politician is headed, it's useful to see where he comes from. His degree is in accounting. Parrish has held positions in management, finance and the securities industry. He served as Vice President of management for a large real estate trust where he was in charge of managing properties in excess of 450 million dollars.

Parrish is largely an unknown quantity on the issues that affect working people. But what we know does not inspire confidence.

Race for Insurance Commissioner

Bustamante: the record

Cruz Bustamante has taken a lot of heat in recent years: for his doomed gubernatorial campaign against Arnold Schwarzenegger, to his campaign finance violations, to his weight.

But Bustamante can offer working people something that his opponent cannot: a record of steadfast support for working people and their issues. The record shows that Bustamante:

- Voted to restore overtime pay after Gov. Wilson abolished it.
- Supported legislation to increase penalties on bosses for willful violations of job safety laws.
- Supported legislation to permit employees to use sick leave to care for an ill family member.
- Supported an increase in the minimum wage.
- Stood with injured workers in the fight to establish protections against repetitive stress injuries.

Bustamante gets his share of bad press. But what really counts is who he stands with when the chips are down. He's tried to enhance his image recently with a very public crusade for weight loss and a healthy life style. But the real question isn't Bustamante's weight, but who he helps when he throws his weight around.

His record proves he's been out there helping us.

Poizner: aspiring career politician

“As an experienced businessperson, Steve Poizner is not a career politician.”

That's what the candidate's website says. But if he's not a career politician, he seems at least to be aspiring to the position.

Poizner lost a bid in 2004 for a seat in the California Assembly. Now the independently wealthy businessman has set his sights on the office of Insurance Commissioner.

Succeeding in business is not the same job as protecting consumers against California's huge and sometimes rapacious insurance industry.

Poizner has been a very successful entrepreneur. Clearly he wants a role in public life. But until we can see how he stands on bread and butter issues, Poizner doesn't belong in a position as important as Insurance Commissioner.

Feisty Derby outspoken on job issues

Jill Derby doesn't think members of Congress need a pay raise. She thinks working Nevadans do.

Derby, candidate for Congress in Nevada's Second District, blasted members of Congress for giving themselves a pay raise this year while voting down an increase in the minimum wage. "That's not leadership—that's embarrassing," she says.

Making the economy work for working people is a central theme of Derby's campaign. One million private sector jobs have been lost, she says, while long-term unemployment is at a ten year high, and wages aren't keeping up with increasing inflation, interest rates, education or healthcare costs. "And 6 million workers have lost their right to earn overtime pay," she adds.

Derby is outspoken about keeping good paying jobs in our country, "not outsourcing them for cheaper labor around the globe." She wants to "end tax breaks for companies that outsource jobs and cut taxes for small businesses and domestic manufacturers that create jobs here at home."

Derby tends to get to the point in a hurry, a quality that many voters are likely to appreciate.

She calls for Congress "to reverse the billions in giveaways they passed for big oil corporations in their energy bill last year, and to make lasting changes that will set America on a path to lower energy costs and a cleaner economy."

She calls for business and state investments to make renewable energy technologies available and affordable for consumers: "Some say that we can't afford to invest in expensive renewable energy technology. I ask how we can afford not to?" And she calls for an overhaul of the prescription drug bill. "The prescription drug bill Congress passed was by and for the pharmaceutical industry, not patients. I'll work to bring down the costs of prescription drugs, and that means rewriting the bill for patients, not industry executives. I support legalizing the safe re-importation of American-made prescription drugs from Canada and efforts to give Medicare the bulk-purchasing power of other insurance carriers to drive down costs."

For Nevadans who think it's time for a change in the 2nd Congressional District, Jill Derby is a good choice.

standards, and their accomplishments should not be overlooked in this increasing environment of testing standards."

Sprinkle supports stricter laws for crimes involving domestic violence and sex abuse offenders, and has called for improved coordination among fire, police and emergency personnel.

Sprinkler recognizes that health care is a growing concern for working families.

"Every man, woman and child has a fundamental right to quality health care. We, as a society, cannot expect a worker to perform or a child to learn if they must come to work or school with chronic health concerns," he says. Reducing the number of uninsured, he says, will "help reduce medical costs for everyone."

For 16 years, Mike Sprinkle has worked to provide emergency assistance to people in need. This November, voters will have an opportunity to put Mike to work for Nevada's 12th Assembly District.

Education, law enforcement, health care drive Sprinkle's agenda

Nevadans in Assembly District 32 have the opportunity to bring fresh energy to the state capitol by electing Mike Sprinkle.

Sprinkle, a paramedic and firefighter in Reno, has put education, law enforcement and health care at the center of his campaign—three issues that are critical to quality of life for Nevadans.

"There has not been enough emphasis placed on the valuable services our children's teachers provide every day," says Sprinkle. "They should be held to high

Race for Nevada Governor

We need Dena Titus

When Dena Titus came to the Local 1245 Reno Unit Meeting in May, it was for one purpose: to show solidarity with union members locked in a bitter contract fight with Sierra Pacific Power.

And she didn't just wave, say vote for me, and then head for the door. She came early and spoke with Local 1245 members individually about her priorities.

Titus understands that working people are the key to Nevada's prosperity. Sierra Pacific Power, she said, has a responsibility "to be a good corporate citizen" and for "negotiating in good faith and providing good jobs with good benefits."

Dena Titus isn't just smart and principled, she has the political savvy to make it to the top. Local 1245 members have a huge stake in helping her get there.

"Organized labor is under attack," Titus told Local 1245 members in May. Corporations are "rolling back wages, rolling back benefits, rolling back jobs."

There's plenty of evidence for that in the prolonged contract negotiations with Sierra Pacific Power. Local 1245 members in August overwhelmingly rejected a Sierra contract proposal, an indication that there's plenty of fight left in the union.

The question union members face in November is this: are we going to have to fight on our own, or will we have a governor in Carson City who will stand with us?

Dena Titus has already shown, by her actions, where she stands. Local 1245 members need Dena Titus. And Dena Titus needs Local 1245 members this election season.

Let's make Dena Titus the next Governor of Nevada.

Dena Titus offers encouragement to Local 1245 members at May unit meeting in Reno.

Gibbons: not good for Nevada

You can say this much about Jim Gibbons, candidate for Nevada Governor: it would be nice to get him out of Washington DC.

Gibbons has been a vigorous opponent of working families while serving in the US Congress. He has voted to:

- Reduce funding for critical job training programs.
- Cut OSHA's budget at a time when more than 4 million workers are injured on the job annually and more than 5,000 killed.
- Let Wal-Mart off the hook for child labor violations.
- Approve the Central America Free Trade Agreement, despite evidence that it will lead to the loss of many US jobs.
- Approve a tax cut that gives 40% of the benefits to households earning more than $1 million a year but provides only $7 to the average middle-income family.

Gibbons doesn't belong in Washington DC. And he doesn't belong in the Nevada Governor's office, either.

Judge Bridget Peck: IBEW kin

Bridget Peck has some big-name supporters in her bid to remain District Judge in Nevada's 7th District.

"Bridget is a rising star in the northern Nevada legal community," says Gov. Kenny, who appointed her district judge in Washoe County. "I know she will serve with distinction for many years to come."

But Peck has an equally important supporter in Paul Robb, a Journeyman Fitter at Truckee Meadows Water Authority and member of IBEW Local 1245. Robb is Judge Peck's brother.

An accomplished attorney in the Reno area since 1987, Peck has received from her peers the highest rating for legal ability and ethics.
