About the District

Organized in 1887, the Turlock Irrigation District holds the distinction of being the very first irrigation district in the state of California. It also is believed to be one of the oldest continually operating special districts of its kind in the nation and the first in the state to sell electricity to its customer-owners on a retail basis.

TID is located about 90 miles east of San Francisco in the heart of the agriculturally rich Central Valley of California. It is an independent, locally owned and governed multi-purpose organization that conveys irrigation water to 150,000 acres of farmland in Stanislaus and Merced counties. TID provides retail electricity directly to customers within its service area. Inside a separate 425-square-mile electric service area, TID supplies electricity to more than 76,000 homes, farms, businesses, industries and municipal accounts.
